Joy to the World

The words of Joy to the World were written by Englishman Isaac Watts, who wrote hundreds of hymns. For years, the music was thought to have been written by George Frideric Handel but was actually written by American Lowell Mason in the style of Handel.

Silent Night

Silent Night has been translated into many languages throughout the world. Sometimes called Tyrolean Folk Song, it was sung in the 19th century by traveling folk singers throughout Austria and Germany. An Austrian family of singers first performed it in New York City around 1840.

Frosty the Snowman

Frosty the Snowman was written by Americans Jack Rollins and Steve Nelson in 1950. It was recorded in the same year by Gene Autry and was later featured in an animated TV program. The song is very popular during the Christmas season even though the holiday is never mentioned.
