PROGRAM NOTES

Antonin Dvorak was born and raised in a country village in Bohemia which was the primary source of inspiration for his music. His lyric melodies and fiery Bohemian spirit are evident in the fourth movement from his Eighth Symphony. The symphony could have easily been subtitled "The Slavonic". This movement starts with a trumpet fanfare which is followed by a kind of melodic prelude. The vigorous peasant dance based on the fanfare theme emerges in the finale and brings the work to a resounding close.

SYMPHONIC CLASSICS

This series presents orchestral music as the composers intended in harmony and form. Difficult transitional and technical sections have been eliminated, but important thematic material retained. Each composition is effectively arranged for programs and festivals and will enrich the repertoire of school or community orchestras.
