

Alfred's Growing Band SeriesSymphony No. 7(Second Movement)*Ludwig van Beethoven*Arr. by John Cacavas

This movement, from Symphony No. 7, is one of Beethoven's most famous works. Care was taken to adhere to the composer's intent with few expectations (the first is found in the opening statement, where the orchestration was raised an octave for purposes of range).

The dynamics are extremely important. In measure 27, the alto clarinet, tenor sax, baritone sax and baritone horn can stagger their breathing to create the long line intended. If the third trumpeter part at measure 57 is too high for some players, it may be tacet at the conductor's discretion. At measure 79, there should be only one player in the high register. It, along with the flutes, will provide the desired effect. Starting at measure 75, the bass drum (which isn't in Beethoven's original score) should blend in with the timpani.
