This piece was composed in 1830. It was published without opus number by Leitgeber, a Polish firm, in 1875. At the top of the first edition, these words (in Polish) appear: "For my sister Louise to play, before she practices my second Concerto."

Ⓐ The trill begins on the principal note, to preserve the legato with the preceding note.

In subsequent trills in this nocturne, the performance is clearly indicated by the fingering.
