ABOUT THE COVER

Horace Pippin (1888-1946) was one of the great self-taught African-American artists of the 20th century. Except for a brief stint in the Army during World War I, he lived his entire life in West Chester, Pennsylvania. Despite a serious wartime injury to his right hand, Pippin began painting in the late 1920s and by 1938 his works were being exhibited in galleries in New York and Philadelphia. His Holy Mountain III is one of a series of Holy Mountain paintings which may have been inspired by the Peaceable Kingdom paintings of earlier American folk artists such as Edward Hicks.
