

NOTES

SHIRLEY TEMPLE (born 1928) was a famous child-star of the 1930's and 40's. She became an instant Hollywood sensation at age 5 when she began dancing, singing, and acting in movies. As an adult, Shirley Temple Black became active in politics, serving as the United States Ambassador to Czechoslovakia (1989-92), a position which she called, "The best job I ever had."

AIMEE SEMPLE (McPHERSON) (1890-1944) was a Canadian-born evangelist and media sensation in the 1920's and 30's. Although not an actress, there have been several Hollywood films about her dramatic and influential life. Often referred to as "Sister" Semple, she did appear in The Voice of Hollywood No. 9, one in a series of popular documentaries released in the 1930's by Tiffany Studios.

DONALD DUCK is a world-famous cartoon character created by Walt Disney Productions. His birthday is officially recognized as June 9, 1934, the day his debut film was released. Donald's full name is Donald Fauntleroy Duck, and his famous voice, one of the most identifiable voices in all of animation, was performed by actor Clarence "Ducky" Nash until 1983.

HUMPHREY BOGART (1899-1957) has been called "the number one movie legend of all time." Though he started his career as a Broadway stage player and B-movie actor during the 1920's and 1930's, Bogart's later accomplishments have made him an international movie icon. In 1999, the American Film Institute named Bogart the Greatest Male Star of All Time. He performed the line "Here's lookin' at you, kid" as the character Ricky Blaine in the 1942 movie Casablanca.

GLORIA SWANSON (1899-1983) was an Academy Award-nominated, Golden Globe-winning American actress. She was prolific during the silent film era, but her career declined with the advent of "talkies" (movies with sound). She is best known for her comeback role Norma Desmond in the 1950 film Sunset Boulevard, in which she performed the famous line "Alright, Mr. DeMille, I'm ready for my close-up."

ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER (born 1947) is an Austrian-American and the 38th Governor of California. As a young man, Schwarzenegger gained widespread attention as a bodybuilder, and later achieved worldwide fame as a Hollywood movie star. Playing the title role in the 1984 science fiction film The Terminator, Arnold delivered the famous line, "I'll be back" – a quote which the American film Institute honored on July 21, 2005 by ranking it number 37 on a list of the best movie quotes in the past 100 years of cinema.

TYRONE POWER (1914-1958) was an American film and stage actor who appeared in dozens of films during the 1930's, 40's, and 50's. Often cast as a swashbuckler or romantic lead, "Ty" was famous for his dark, classically handsome good looks. In the 1950's, he began limiting the number of movies he would make each year in order to have time for the stage.

MR. (MAX) FACTOR (1877-1938) was an American make-up artist who founded the international cosmetics firm Max Factor & Company in 1909. During the glory years of Hollywood, Factor became intimately associated with the world of movie make-up, creating the first makeup for movies in 1914. A-list actresses such as Jean Harlow, Bette Davis, Joan Crawford, and Judy Garland were regulars at the Max Factor beauty salon, located near Hollywood Boulevard.
