NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

Based on “God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen,” this chart is arranged in a Latin/rock style.

This arrangement should be easy to rehearse because of the simplicity of the melody and rhythmic repetitions. At the beginning, careful attention should be paid to the articulations and dynamics. As it is the case with many young ensembles, balance within each section, specifically the rhythm section, should be discussed and clarified. No single instrument should stand out unless playing a solo.

A little bit of rehearsal should lock in the rhythm section and establish the Latin/rock groove. Note that, once learned, the first eight measures appear again at measures 27–30 and measures 49–57; making that connection will facilitate rehearsal. Starting at measures 9–26, the melody is introduced with the quarter notes marked with tenuto markings. Throughout this segment, the rhythm section should play tight and stay beneath the melody. At measure 26, focus on ensuring the proper sonority of the sharp 9 chords played in the piano and optional guitar parts.

At measures 31–38, the melody is introduced in fourths while the trombones play a very simple countermelody. This entire section is to be played legato also. The riff is written in fourths (quartal harmony), a characteristic of the rock idiom. Focus on proper balance throughout. During this section, the drummer should fill as needed until measure 66. At measure 75, a suggested solo has been written for all wind instruments with various possibilities; feature one soloist, a specific section or all sections can play together. Students should be encouraged to improvise and come up with ideas that may be used by others in the ensemble. Listen and learn from each other. The solo section may be repeated as needed.
