This tribute to outstanding trombonist and bandleader Tommy Dorsey weaves through two arrangements of classic hit recordings by TD and his band, "Song of India" and "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You." Optional parts are provided for woodwind players to use clarinets as doubles or play this chart with saxes only, no doubles.

Precise phrasing and articulation, hallmarks of the best bands of the "Swing Era" have been indicated for all horns. As in most classic big band swing charts, the notation of regular eighth notes or dotted eighth and sixteenth notes is interpreted and played more like a triplet comprised of a quarter note plus an eighth note.

Prime examples of this interpretation can be found in the intro to "Song of India" as the saxes join the infectiously swinging tom toms, and again at measure 152 as the tutti saxes begin a swing eighth, dotted eighth, sixteenth note chorus. Note how this swing feel provides such a beautiful counterpoint to TD's relaxed, almost "laid back" approach to the melody.

I have transcribed all original solos as they were played. I suggest using these transcribed solos as a model, or more importantly, as a way of learning the original style and performance techniques. After the style has been absorbed, soloists should feel free to either create their own solos or stick with the originals. As for the ensemble, there are few things as musically satisfying as playing your part with your ears wide open to what everyone else is playing, and how the lead players of the section are phrasing their parts. The fun and musicianship comes with learning how to balance and blend your part into the overall ensemble sound.

Dynamically, the tom toms and saxes begin "Song" on the softer side, with markedly contrasting f interjections by the brass. A gradual crescendo leads to the entrance of the "solo tone" muted trombone, which requires a quick return to a p dynamic marking in the saxes and rhythm sections. After the cut-off of the fermata, the solo trombone is free to set the ballad tempo for "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You." The rhythm section plays in a basic "2" feel until the stop-time section beginning at measures 133–140. Notice that after the rit and fermata, there is a da capo back to a much brighter tempo!

Enjoy!
