NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

Cubano Chant is a simple but effective Latin chart written by American jazz pianist and composer Ray Bryant. As in all jazz music, correct articulation is extremely important for the overall success of the performance. The marcato or rooftop accent (▲) is played short but not staccato or clipped.

The chart begins with a short Latin drum groove. After becoming familiar with the tune, you may want to encourage your drummer to improvise some rhythms in a similar style.

For the solo section at measure 43 (repeated three times), the solos are completely written out, simple and brief; however, the simple chord symbols are provided to encourage some improvisation. To begin to improvise or at least embellish the solos, first direct the player to learn the melody from memory, then teach them the notes of each chord symbol. Embellishment of the solos can consist of playing the written notes and varying the rhythms or playing the written rhythms and varying the melodic notes to fit into the chords. These are the first steps to improvisation—go for it!

I hope that you and your ensemble find Cubano Chant to be an exciting and worthwhile experience.

Enjoy.
