PROGRAM NOTES

George Gershwin and his brother Ira Gershwin were the masters of popular songs that became musical "standards" in the early 20th century. Master is a strong word in such a statement when considering all of the popular musical composers of that era, but consider a partial list of titles from the pen of the Gershwins: "S Wonderful," "Oh, Lady Be Good," "Embraceable You," "The Man I Love" and "I've Got Rhythm." This partial list of their musical compositions, along with six others (a total of eleven selections), are presented in quick succession in this medley for concert band.

NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

Style, articulation and dynamics are carefully notated in the score and parts. The dynamics may be adjusted to meet the needs of your particular ensemble, but careful attention should be given to the ending of the arrangement.

In measure 2, there is no break in rhythm after the fermata.

All solo passages are intended for a single performer.

There are parts included for both drumset and electric bass.

Do not use Percussion 1 and Percussion 2 parts along with the drumset parts as this would duplicate the notation. My preference would be to use a good, competent drumset performer for all the non-pitched percussion.

The electric bass part is a duplicate of the tuba part. However, both parts can be used together. Do not let the volume of the electric bass overpower the tuba sound. The tuba sound should be of desired quality.

Style, balance, phrasing, intonation, tonal quality and precision: the keys to good performance.
