NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

Sure to endear students and audience alike! Karl Geringer, in his book, Brahms: His Life and Work, asserts that if the first, second and Finale movements of Symphony No. 4 “seem inspired by Sophocles’ tragedies... this movement might be sponsored by Breughel. A sturdy gaiety reigns supreme...” Carefully crafted to preserve the essence of the original, this arrangement retains the core of the string parts with the necessary substance of the winds.
