NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

21st Century Breakdown continues the “rock opera” style of its predecessor, American Idiot. The music is a wonderful mix of alternative rock, pop, and symphonic themes. The album is divided into three “acts,” with many of the songs transitioning into one another. This arrangement was constructed accordingly, so as to maintain the feel, character, and integrity of the record itself.

The opening suspended cymbal roll should lead into the ethereal “Song of the Century.” Give your trombone soloist a great deal of freedom and expression. The woodwind choir should rest on top of the solo, providing only a tonal pallet. When the trumpet enters in measure 19, give careful attention that it does not overpower the melody in the trombone solo.

“21st Century Breakdown” begins at measure 28 and should be a gradual build to the first opening statement of the arrangement at measure 36. At measure 44, let your horn section shine!

At measure 52, note the change to an almost “tribal” rock ‘n roll style. Encourage your tom-tom player to be as animated as possible here. The melodic triplet figures at measure 56 should be light and aggressive building to an exciting transition to “¿Viva La Gloria? (Little Girl)” at measure 82. If you have a student well-versed on piano, this is a moment to showcase him or her on the optional piano part. At any rate, ensure that the woodwind choir is as smooth as possible. Measure 93 drastically changes in style and should be light and brisk. At measure 114 to 130, let your woodwinds soar on top of the rest of the band. The trills can be very aggressive!

Measure 131 should be approached as an expressive pop ballad. I have scored the low brass and woodwinds alongside the piano (if available) to provide a background to the flute solo at measure 136. This solo should be very free and very expressive, in almost a “bluesy” style.

The B♭ chord in the low brass at measures 154 and 155 should seamlessly bleed into the tempo change into “Know Your Enemy.” The opening drumset beat should be very aggressive. This song should be approached in a very straight-forward alternative rock style. Give careful attention to the placement of the accents, as they are scored to simulate a distorted guitar.

We end with a brief restatement of “21st Century Breakdown” at measure 191. At measure 195, let your French horns soar! The last crescendo should build aggressively, while your drumset player “brings the house down.”

I hope that you, your students, and audience thoroughly enjoy this Suite from Green Day’s 21st Century Breakdown!

*Note: It is intended that a drumset be used in rehearsals and performances. It is highly recommend that you expose your drumset player to the style of Green Day’s drummer, Tré Cool, as this will greatly enhance the success and excitement of the arrangement. On occasion, drumset fills are written out, but it is intended that the student ad-lib these fills to appropriately match the style of the music. If no drumset is available, you may substitute with multiple instruments: snare drum, bass drum, ride cymbal, and two toms.
