NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

“You’re Still a Young Man” is one of the biggest hits by the legendary jazz/R&B/funk band Tower of Power. Originally released in 1972, it remains one of the most requested songs that the band performs.

The section from mm. 52–63 should have a little swing feel to it, and the eighth notes are to be played (♩ = ♪³). The music returns to a straight-eighth feel at m. 64. As always, articulation is critical. Staccato markings are short, but not too short or clipped. Releases are very important, especially in a chart like this. Clean release by a section or the entire wind section will make a band sound more mature.

Chord symbols are included in the piano part to encourage some simple “comping.” Comping is supporting the ensemble or soloist with harmonic pads, which can be rhythmic or sustained. Listen to the professional demo track at alfred.com/downloads.

There are numerous optional parts included: flute, clarinet, F horn, baritone T.C./tenor sax, tuba, and vibraphone.

I hope that you and your ensemble find “You’re Still a Young Man” to be a fun and exciting musical experience!
