VOICES

Paint-in' a fence seems like no fun, but that's not how the job gets done. There's a se-cret to the work we do. It's sim-ple, my friends, as two plus two. Just 19

11

15

do it with a smile, and it's not a chore.

23

Add a lit-tle grat-i-tude to your at-ti-tude.

(Near the end of the song, a few of the fence painters turn the fence around. It is now completely painted! When the song ends, the fence-painters return to their original positions as Aunt Polly steps forward and speaks.)

AUNT POLLY: Well Tom, looks like you got the fence painted. If I didn't see it with my own eyes I wouldn't believe it. Now, if you will go pump some water and learn your verses, you can go play. (returns to the chorus)

TOM: Oh, Mr. Twain?

MR. TWAIN: (rising from his chair) Yes, Tom?

TOM: Say, do you think we could make a deal where you change the story a bit, and I don't have to do any more chores right now?

MR. TWAIN: That's fine, Tom. But remember, sometimes we have to work so we can enjoy the finer things in life. Remember the song you just sang?

TOM: Yes, you're right. But since we just painted a fence, couldn't I do something fun for a moment? I'm tired of living here in this town and having to do everything Aunt Polly says. I'd rather be a pirate!

MR. TWAIN: A pirate?

TOM: Yes, a pirate!

MR. TWAIN: Well, Tom, so it shall be. (returns to his chair and writes on his pad) "Tom's mind was made up now. He was going to be a pirate."

HUCK: (stepping forward) Did I hear someone say "pirate?"

TOM: Hi, Huck! Yeah, Mr. Twain says I can be a pirate for a little while.

HUCK: I'm coming along! You'll need someone to help steer the raft.

BECKY: (stepping forward) Can I come with you?

HUCK: Ain't no girls allowed on our raft, Becky! Besides, you ain't supposed to come along till later in the show!

BECKY: (embarrassed) Oops. Sorry. (steps back into the chorus)

HUCK: So what do pirates do, Tom, besides sailing on the ocean and generally making life awful for everybody else?

TOM: I just realized something. Aunt Polly must be a pirate!

(Tom and Huck cross to the raft, or move downstage if there is no physical raft, as the music starts. They don pirate hats and have pretend oars as they paddle and sing along with the Townspeople.)
