

CHILDREN OF GAIA

Robert Sheldon

Gaia is a primordial deity in the Ancient Greek pantheon and considered a Mother Goddess or Great Goddess personifying the Earth, sometimes referred to as Mother Nature. In mythology she had numerous children, many of whom are of great significance to the ancient Greeks. Three of these children are represented in this dramatic work for concert band—Typhon, Tethys, and Enceladus.

Typhon was one of the largest and most fearsome of all creatures. His human upper half reached to the heavens and his arms reached for miles with a hundred dragon heads on each of his hands. His bottom half was gigantic viper coils that could reach the top of his head when stretched out and made a hissing noise. His whole body was covered in wings, and fire flashed from his eyes. He is represented at first as a sleeping giant who awakens with a violent outburst.

Tethys was mother of the chief rivers of Earth that were known to the Greeks, and was considered an embodiment of the waters of the world. Her musical representation is calm and weightless as if floating in the ocean.

Enceladus had serpent-like lower limbs, with the scales of dragons for feet. He was buried under Mount Etna. The volcanic fires of Etna were said to be the breath of Enceladus, and its tremors caused by him rolling his injured side beneath the mountain. The Greeks sometimes refer to an earthquake as a "strike of Enceladus." He is represented as a mischievous and menacing character, which brings the piece to an energetic conclusion.

Children of Gaia was commissioned by the Washington Community High School Band Boosters for the WCHS Concert Bands, Washington, Illinois, Jim Tallman and Lisa Theis, Directors.
