		In Conclusion	144

In the two diagrams that follow, notice how the same principle applies to the left hand.

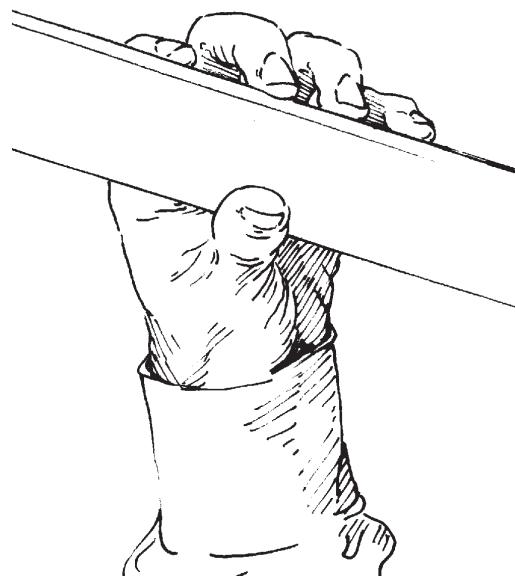

The straighter the wrist, the more dexterity your fingers will have.

Bending your wrist too much makes it a struggle to play.

As for your left-hand thumb, it's generally wise to keep it positioned just under your second (middle) finger. This creates somewhat of a vise, and allows for an even distribution of pressure throughout the hand.

About the Body

The body should also be in a relaxed state. While seated, try stretching your neck and spine upwards towards the ceiling, pulling your shoulders back slightly (just enough to keep them from drooping forward). Now, relax your muscles so that your body sort of freezes itself in that position. This is a good state for the body to settle into. Your shoulders should not crunch upward into your neck. Take a look at the illustrations in the following section about holding the guitar.

Now we will deal with moving two fingers and fixing two fingers. The same principles apply here: rooting the two fixed fingers through to the back of the neck, while keeping the two movable fingers as light as possible. You'll find there's more potential for strain here, so take it slow and focus on the stretch as you extend your fingers, and then on the opposing motion as they pass each other. Finally, sustain the second bass-note as your next finger travels up to the treble, and then hold the second treble-note as you switch to the bass, etc.

Fix on ③ :

The exercise consists of six lines of music. Each line begins with a bass note and ends with a treble note. The fingerings for the first line are 3, 4. The subsequent lines show a sequence of notes and fingerings: 2, 1; 3, 2; 4, 3; 4, 2; 4, 1; 3, 1. A grey vertical bar on the left side marks the start of each line.

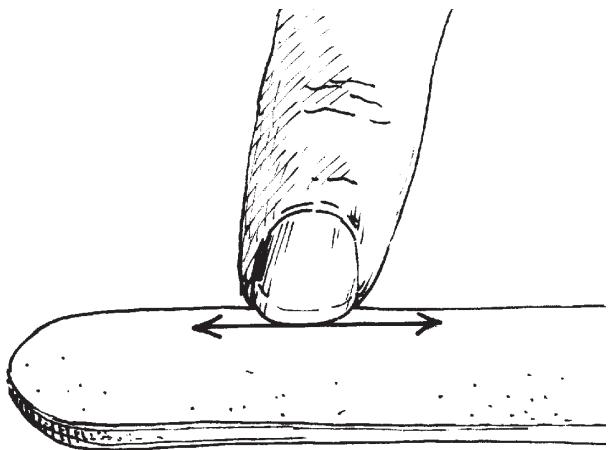

Shaping the Nails

Always use a file, as opposed to a nail cutter, to shape the fingernails of your right hand. Nail cutters leave the fibers of your nails with jagged ends, even if you polish with sandpaper afterwards.

Always file your nails with your fingertips facing you. Position the file underneath the nail at a slight angle and look down the surface of the file. This gives you the ideal view of the edge of the nail. Try to create a straight line as seen from this angle, as illustrated on the right.

Ideally, the file will touch the edge of the nail evenly across its width, and fit securely underneath it without rocking around. If the shape of your nail is too round, you will notice a rocking motion as the file moves around the nail's edge.

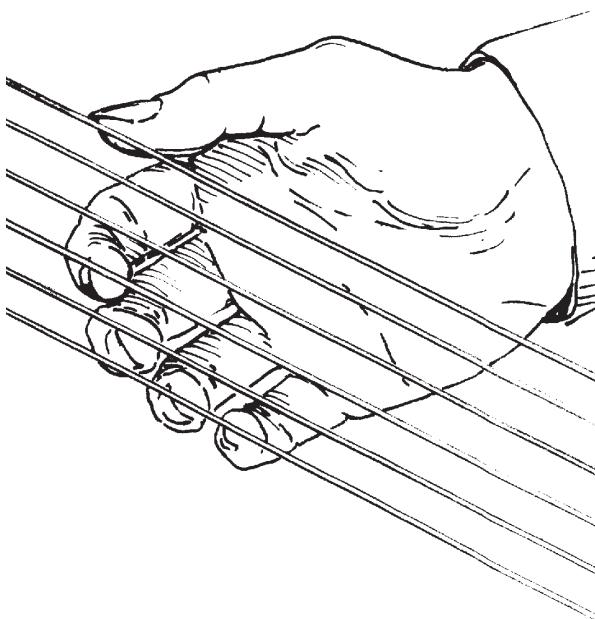

The line illustrated to the right will only be seen from this particular angle. The nail shape is not actually straight or flat. It will still appear rounded, although possibly not as round as the fleshy fingertip.

These ideas for shaping your nails are only suggestions. There are many variations on the four nail types discussed in this book. While I have found that the corresponding shapes suggested here work well consistently, experimentation is encouraged. Find out what works and feels best for you.

Angle and Placement

In order to achieve a full, or "fat" tone, we must give special attention to the angle of the fingertips to the strings. Note that when the fingers are initially placed on the strings, only the flesh makes contact. The nail makes its contact when pressure is applied. The illustration below shows an advantageous angle.

When a finger moves straight back into the palm from this angle, it is actually moving over a healthy portion of the string surface (as the string uses the nail as a "ramp") which enhances the tone. This angle, however, creates a scraping sound on the wound bass strings, and should therefore be adjusted to a straighter angle for playing on the fourth, fifth and sixth strings.

Arpeggios from Tarrega's The Complete Technical Studies

These are great exercises for developing your finger independence. They involve standard finger combinations in the context of awkward string crossings.

Practice using free stroke, with a full sound. Wherever string crossing is involved, make sure you prepare the next note immediately after releasing the last.

If you are one of the multitude of players who have difficulty playing a thumb rest stroke while doing free strokes with your fingers, this is a good opportunity to work on that technique.

Take your time. It is best to work on a few of these during a practice session, and become comfortable with them before moving on. You don't necessarily have to play them all every day.

The sheet music contains 16 numbered exercises, each consisting of two measures of sixteenth-note patterns. The patterns involve various fingerings (m, i, a) and string crossings. The exercises are arranged in four staves of sixteenth-note patterns. Fingerings are indicated above the notes: 1. m i m i, 2. i m i m, 3. a m a m, 4. m a m a, 5. i m i m, 6. m i m i, 7. a m a m, 8. m a m a, 9. i m i m, 10. m i m i m i, 11. m a m a m a, 12. a m a m a m, 13. i m a m, 14. m i m a, 15. m a m i, 16. a m i m.

Shapeshifting II.

Evan Hirschelman

* Let all notes vibrate, except 5th & 6th string melody notes (stems down). These melody notes should not ring through each other. In addition, 5th string melody notes that are followed by a rest are dampened by lifting or using the backside of thumb.

 With this rest, the composer is emphasizing that the previous bass note should be stopped.

SNOWFLIGHT

Andrew York

Track 14

A lovely, easy, arpeggio piece, this is one of 8 Discernments by York.

CHECKLIST:

- ✓ Be very attentive to tone production.
 - ✓ Take this opportunity to feel the independence of each right-hand finger.
 - ✓ Don't move your left hand off of any chord before the right hand finishes the arpeggio.
 - ✓ Follow the indicated dynamics.

$\text{♩} = 80-108$

i m i m i m i m

dim.

The sheet music consists of five staves of tablature for a six-string guitar. The first staff starts at measure 12 with a key signature of one sharp, a tempo of 80-108 BPM, and dynamic p. It includes performance instructions i m above the strings and etc. below them. The second staff begins at measure 5 with a key signature of one sharp. The third staff begins at measure 9. The fourth staff starts at measure 13 with a key signature of one sharp, dynamic f, and dim. instruction. Measure numbers 12, 5, 9, and 13 are indicated at the start of their respective staves. Measures 14 through 18 are shown as continuation lines. Various fingerings are marked above the strings throughout the piece.
