

Alfred's DEBUT SERIES FOR YOUNG BANDS

Cha'La

By Randall D. Standridge

Somewhere in the vast ocean sits a tiny island—a tropical paradise with lush, jungle forests and beautiful sandy beaches. At the center of this island, rising like a fist to the sky, sits Cha'La Mountain, where the volcano goddess sleeps. Once a generation, Cha'La awakens, spewing fire and smoke into the azure sky. When the dark clouds begin to issue from the peak, the people of the island begin their dance to appease the goddess and lull her back to sleep. Thus, the cycle of destruction and rebirth is complete.

Cha'La: Dance of the Volcano Goddess is intended to be an evocative, dramatic work for young band. The piece incorporates chanting, clapping, driving rhythms, and dissonant harmonies to create a cinematic portrait of this imaginary island. This work was commissioned by the South Central Iowa Bandmaster's Association. The composer wishes to personally thank them for the trust and creative license they allowed in the creation of this work.

Performance Notes

- The syllables “Cha” and “La” should both be pronounced with a soft “a,” as in “Cha-Cha” or “Mama.” The chanting should be clearly audible at all times, even when whispered. (If the whispering is too soft, speak louder; this may be affected by group size).
- In measures 36–40, during the clapping section, students should place the instruments in their laps. Put them down in measure 36 and pick them up again during measure 40, while chanting.
- The Percussion 4 part can be played by one or two players, making the number of percussionists either six or seven. If you have one player for the part, the following set-up is recommended:
