PREFACE

This fourth book of the organ and keyboard works of Andrea Gabrieli contains, in addition to the Fantasia Allegra of Vol. III (1595), the Canzonas and Ricercari of Vol. V of the original edition (1605).

Thanks are due to the Municipal Library of Augsburg for supplying photostats of Vol. V.

The Canzonas in this book are transcribed in keyboard score from French chansons. Gabrieli adheres quite closely to the vocal settings. He only adds to the keyboard score sundry instrumental ornaments which still leave the original quite distinctly recognizable.

Compare, for instance, Orlando di Lasso's five-part chanson "Suzanne un jour" with Gabrieli's keyboard score. Both are reproduced by Kinkeldey one under the other bar for bar. The Ricercari which Gabrieli composed on the themes of the Canzonas are however original works, "compositions" in the modern sense. Instead of melodic decoration of a given setting, contrapuntal working comes to the fore.

The Ricercari Ariosi are probably arranged from Arias (Italian Canzonas) like the first.

The editor had to dispense with information about the French text which is often very free.

As usual, all additions are indicated as such. The most important—or doubtful—corrections are indicated in footnotes. Endeavour has been made to make the progression of parts clearer to the eye by the distribution on two staves, as well as by the occasional addition of rests.

FANTASIA ALLEGRA

The first system of musical notation for 'FANTASIA ALLEGRA' consists of two staves, treble and bass clef. The music is in a 3/4 time signature. The treble staff begins with a series of eighth notes, followed by a more complex rhythmic pattern. The bass staff provides a steady accompaniment with quarter and eighth notes. A sharp sign is visible above the treble staff in the third measure.

The second system of musical notation continues the piece. It features similar rhythmic patterns in both staves, with the treble staff showing more intricate melodic lines. A sharp sign is present above the treble staff in the third measure.

The third system of musical notation includes two first endings, each marked with '(I)'. The first ending occurs in the first measure, and the second in the second measure. The music continues with a series of eighth notes in the treble staff and a steady bass line.

The fourth system of musical notation concludes the piece. It features a final melodic flourish in the treble staff and a steady accompaniment in the bass staff. A sharp sign is visible above the treble staff in the second measure.
