

The setting of this text is so greatly enhanced by the music that to perform it in English would do it a grave injustice. However, the following translation will give the performers a clearer understanding in their approach to the communication of this work.

O sing unto the Lord a new song.
 Sing unto the Lord, all ye earth.
 Sing unto the Lord, bless His name!
 Show forth His salvation from day to day.
 Declare his glory among the heathen,
 His wonders among all people.

All markings are those of the editor. All accents and phrasing indications are to be executed with careful subtlety, never drawing undue attention to themselves and away from the total composition.

The breakdown by measures of the phrase structure is indicated by full-length barlines and numerical explanations at mm. 8, 14, 23, 32 and 38.

Example: 7 (3+4) = A seven-measure 'section' divided into two shorter phrases of three and four measures.

It is essential for the singers, as well as the conductor, to be aware of each phrase, its meaning and its relationship to those that precede and those that follow.

The inclusion of "DAW-DAW-DAW..." in the tenor part (mm. 12 and 44), "DEH-DEH-DEH" in the soprano (m. 31) and in the alto (m. 35) is for rhythmic clarity. (This will be inaudible to the listener.) When a breath mark (>) is placed between two quarter notes, the first becomes an eighth note followed by an eighth rest and should be executed in a very disciplined rhythmic manner.

(1) This quarter-note is a change from the original half-note to "notate" the release, in rhythm, on beat four (also in mm. 28 and 45). (2) Half to three quarters of the section may use these added syllables for rhythmic clarity.

(1) 2nd Sopranos may omit the "s" of "jus;" make the half-note a quarter-note, and sing Tenor until their next entrance (four notes), and pronounce the first syllable of "an-nuntiate" as though it were "ah," not "ahn."

(1) Do not oversing the final two measures, i.e., a "full" mf, or very controlled f. Also, a definite feeling of  $\frac{4}{4}$  begins at this point.
