Soliloquy

Kevin Kaisershot

A soliloquy, or monologue, is essentially a conversation with yourself. The most famous soliloquy might be that of Shakespeare's Hamlet. "To be, or not to be" may be one of the most quoted lines of Shakespeare.

In this instance, the solo flute is engaged in a number of thought provoking musical displays, each of which must be individually addressed in order to move forward with the conversation. From pastorale to frantic, stopping briefly to address an episode of melancholy, the conversation ends with an upbeat (albeit more technical) reprise of the frantic section rounding off with a two octave run up the Bb scale.

In 2009 he won the ASCAP/MENC (now NAfME) composition competition wherein his march entry was selected as "The Music Teachers March." Since 1994 he has been almost a yearly recipient of the annual ASCAP standard awards for his contributions to the advancement of American/Educational music.

After 35+ years of successful teaching, Mr. Kaisershot retired in June of 2015 but still continues to contribute to the educational music field and on occasion will find an outlet to perform (trumpet).
