Performance Notes

Scenes from Grand Lake was written during the latter part of 1998 in celebration of the 75th anniversary of Memorial High School. The piece is composed of a series of five scenes reflecting the rich and varied heritage of this culturally rich community in eastern Ohio.

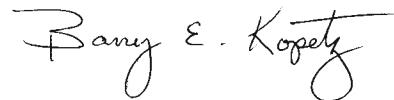

His Creation Is Perfect portrays the natural beauty and purity of the land surrounding Grand Lake as it stood before man altered its design. The landscape is beautiful, simple, and untouched.

...And There Is Joy! depicts the spirit of the European settlers as they reach their new country. They celebrate their good fortune in finding such a bountiful place to settle and raise families, joyful for the beauty that surrounds them and for the new land that will provide for them. The music further represents the energy with which they begin building their community.

Prayer of Thanksgiving demonstrates the colony's reverence toward their God and the gratitude for the land that is so rich and fertile. The music symbolizes deep reflection.

...But Sorrow Fills the Earth recognizes two events. First, the American Indians were displaced by the European settlers, causing great sorrow for these indigenous people. Their way of life was forever changed by this incessant westward migration—a sad moment in American history. Secondly, the building of the canal network, so important to the future of commerce within Ohio, placed new burdens on this beautiful land. The face of the country would never be the same again.

...His Joy Is Everlasting! is a positive reflection that, in spite of what has gone before, the human spirit remains ever optimistic about the future. The restatement of material from scene I emphasizes that in an ever-changing world some things will remain constant. God's earth will remain perfect in spite of what man has done and in spite of what he is yet to do.
