About the Music

Nothing accentuates winter holiday cheer more than a festive carol. Like other types of songs, carols consist of both music and lyrics. Sometimes, a single songwriter creates a song. Other times, a song can be a collaborative work. This is often the case with Christmas carols.

A Bellistic Christmas is a medley of five bell-inspired carols. As the title suggests, bells, chimes, and sleigh bells play a prominent role in this arrangement. Consequently, it is paramount that these instruments be heard throughout the entire work. Depending on the configuration and balance of your ensemble, you may consider positioning these instruments front and center.

The first carol, Ding! Dong! Merrily on High, originated as a French dance tune in the 16th century. The tune is attributed to French cleric Jehan Tabourot. Centuries later, Englishman George Woodward would pen its lyrics. The music to the second carol is credited to Ukrainian composer Mykola Leontovych who arranged Shchedryk, a Ukrainian folk tune. Later, American choral conductor Peter Wilhousky added lyrics, forever immortalizing its melody. The third carol, I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day, originated as a poem by American poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Longfellow wrote the poem on Christmas Day, 1863, after learning that his son Charles had been injured in the American Civil War. In 1872, English organist John Baptiste Calkin would set its words to the tune Waltham. The fourth carol, Kling, Glöckchen (Ring, Little Bell) is a 19th century German carol based on a traditional German folk tune. Karl Enslin, a German school teacher and poet, wrote its lyrics. The fifth carol, Jingle Bells, is really a winter sleigh song and not a Christmas carol. American James Lord Pierpont originally titled it The One Horse Open Sleigh. The song was written in 1850 and published in 1857.

Remember, the best performances include proper ensemble balance, rich tone, accurate rhythms, correct notes, expressive dynamics, precise articulations, and refined phrases. As you practice and perform this work, listen louder than you play so that all parts can be heard in proper proportion to each other. Above all, play to have fun. Be ambassadors of musicianship and convey the joy of these carols to your audience. Happy holidays!
