The Composer

Now the Director of Bands at Tulane University, John M. Dilkey first moved to New Orleans in 1977. He received his bachelor's degree from Butler University and his master's degree from Ohio State University. While in the Midwest, Mr. Dilkey taught in the Ohio and Indiana public school systems before pursuing a doctorate at Indiana University. Since arriving in New Orleans, he has become a successful freelance musician, playing trombone, tuba, and piano with a number of professional groups around the city. In addition to performing, he is a composer and arranger specializing in music for large jazz ensemble.

About the Music

This piece has two distinct feels. One is a common swing style; the other is a New Orleans street-beat style. The swing is a four-beat feel, and the latter is a two-beat feel. If there is an extra player, a tambourine would be a nice addition.

The only requirement for this commission was that I include part of the school's fight song. Well, I did; it is everywhere. You should be able to notice it throughout.
