PROGRAM NOTES

Just before the sun breaks through the morning clouds, the Dragon Riders prepare their mighty beasts for flight. In this exciting piece for developing band by F. Scott Kroll, we take to the skies with them watching the world below as we soar through the clouds!

NOTES TO CONDUCTOR

Articulations are of the utmost importance throughout the piece. During unison sections featuring the low winds, it is important that they do not articulate the notes so heavily the momentum of the piece slows. This also holds true for the upper woodwinds at measure 25 as they are maintaining the tempo at this point and must articulate lightly.

Focus on dynamic contrast as notated. It will add tension and excitement to the performance.

Please strive to maintain the balance between the contrary melodic lines, upper ostinato, and bass line. Balance between musical sections will also facilitate a more consistent tempo and add interest for the audience.

I am pleased to present to you Dragonflight At Dawn. It is my hope your students and audience will enjoy this adventure together!
