About the Music

This contemporary and spirited arrangement is based on Hark! The Herald Angels Sing and Bring a Torch, Jeannette, Isabella. The title comes from the rhythmic treatment of the opening carol. The rhythmic bass line provides unity and is utilized throughout the piece, even serving as a rhythmic and tonal pedal point during the waltzlike presentation of the second carol. Although Hark! The Herald Angels Sing is presented in $\frac{3}{4}$, the melody remains as true to the original as possible, allowing the listener to sing the tune without omitting any lyrics.

As the arrangement develops, pieces of the two carols are increasingly woven into the tonal fabric. At times, the music shifts seamlessly between the two carols, while at other times, different parts of the same carol appear simultaneously, as in measures 94-101. As is the case with photographs, snapshots often serve as a way to recall events that would otherwise fade from memory. The end of the piece alludes to this as the music fades to nothing, leaving only the snapshots that have been taken along the way.
