About the Music

George Frideric Handel (Georg), born in 1685 in Brandenburg-Prussia, was a German-English composer who is best known for his oratorio, The Messiah, as well as his many instrumental concerto grossi, such as his Water Music Suites and Music for the Royal Fireworks. Handel moved from Germany to England in 1712, spent the majority of his life and career in London, and officially became a British citizen in 1727.

These movements, Larghetto and Allegro, are a string orchestra arrangement of the 3rd and 4th movements of his Violin Sonata No. 4 in D Major (HWV 371), which was one of his final chamber music works. While there are collections of his sonatas published, many of the sonatas have come into question. Sonata No. 4 (known as the Great D Major Sonata) and the G Major Sonata (HWV 358), written earlier in his life, are the only two that have been "fully authenticated" as truly the works of Handel. The Larghetto, in B minor, has a 'plaintive', a saddened – or almost pleading quality and character to it, while the final movement, Allegro in D Major, has all the sparkle, optimism, and cheerfulness one can imagine – providing an outstanding pair of contrasting movements for musical development!
